2015 Faith-Based Organizations Disaster Workshops

The Governor's Faith-Based and Community Service Partnership for Disaster Recovery invites faith organization leaders, emergency management directors, local public health agency (LPHA) representatives and Community Organizations Active in Disasters (COAD) members to nine regional workshops in May and June.

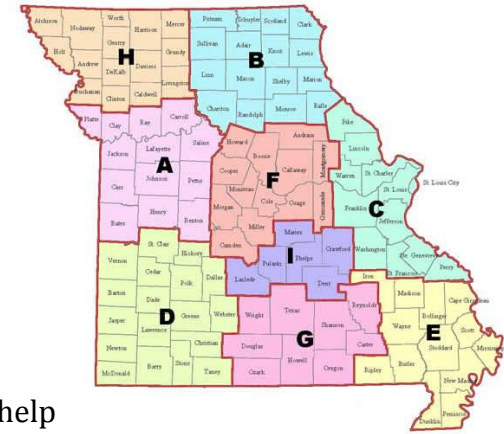

Because faith-based organizations face unique challenges in helping their communities prepare for, respond to and recover from disasters, The Partnership, along with the Public Health Emergency Preparedness program has put together a program that will provide insightful and practical advice to help with that mission. We hope you can participate.

The workshops will provide important information on:

- Dispensing health and hope after a disaster
- Safe food handling in disaster kitchens
- Continuity planning for your house of worship
- Operating a safe disaster shelter
- Engaging ways to help your congregation become "disaster ready"
- Answering the call to provide emotional and spiritual care after a disaster
- Faith communities' response to the Joplin tornado
- And more, much more!

These events are provided free of cost to participants. All events are from 1-5 p.m. Find the workshop in your area in the boxes at the right and register now at:
